A New York dispatch of the 17th, says: "The new trauds made public to-day have added to the general unleasiness in Wall street. On each day since Monday developments have been made of frauds by altering checks, and to-day it is reported that some collaterals of railroad securities have been altered. It is believed by shrewd financiers that we are approaching an era of frauds. There are many symptoms present that these frauds will be novel and on a gigantic scale. Charles Unger & Co., bankers, in Exchange Place, were defrauded to day of about $40,000 by a person named Mitchell, recently a shipper of grain in Baltimore. He had good introductions from the Baltimore correspondent of Unger & Co., and bought about $40,000 by a person obtained kenny, back on the Ninth National Bank. This check was a forgery. Messars. Farmer, Hatch & Co., also narrowly escaped being the victims of another frand. A person obtained Kenny, Day & Co.'s check for thirty dollars and altered it to $6625. The cheek was given to Farmer, Hatch & Co., who took the precaution of getting it first certified at the St. Nichoins Bank. The teller refused to certify, simply because Kenny, Day & Co. had not the amount to their credit. The person decamped when he ascertained that the check had been sent to the bank for certified at the bonds, and thus escaped the trap for them."

Farmer, Hatch & Co. did not, of course, deliver the bonds, and thus escaped the trap for them."
